THE COLLECTOR-GENERALSHIP.

The Privy Council has confirmed the removal of Col. W. F. Allen from the office of Collector-General, and appointed the Hon. Curtis Iaukea in his stead. A feeling of relief will temper the general dissatisfaction over the manner of the Hon. Mr. Allen's taking off, from the agreeable disappointment that we believe is universally felt over the setting aside of a candidate to succeed him who has not the confidence of the community. The new incumbent has an official record in the Department of Foreign Affairs which gives assurance that he is possessed of sterling qualities of the kind demanded in the important position he is called to fill. In private life, also, he is exemplary to a high degree and possesses the heartfelt esteem of the community. We regret to see in this morning's Advertiser—even though from an anonymous correspondent—a plea for the mischievous spoils system of civil service. The fact that Col. Allen has held his office for a period of twenty-one years, during which different Governments ruled and several Kings reigned, is sufficient evidence that the rule governing the tenure of civil service here is not, "To the victors belong the spoils." It is the duty of every friend of good government to resist the entering of the wedge to introduce this the worst feature of American politics into Hawaiian affairs.

HAWAIIANS IN BUSINESS.

The Advertiser replies to an enquiry made by one of our correspondents, as to the extent to which Hawaiians are engaged in business:—There were in the year 1881 (at which time a careful analysis of the taxation of the Kingdom was made) 31,000 taxpayers (including females and estates) in the Kingdom, 15,769 of whom were Hawaiians, or about one-half. This half paid, in round numbers, one-third of the entire sum realized from taxes that year. The Hawaiian taxpayers being numerically stronger than other nationalities paid a larger proportion of "poll" taxes, but still the tax on the real estate was one-fourth, on personal property one-eighth of their entire taxation. Aside from the income derived by the Hawaiians from the rental of their real estate, the proportionally large sum they pay in taxes each year is earned by them in labor and "business." They are to be found working at all trades and occupations. They are doctors, lawyers, ministers and teachers. They manage their own and other people's property, take and execute contracts for buildings, cultivating lands and raising crops of sugar cane and other products. There is not a single industry or occupation of any kind on these Islands that is not engaged in by Hawaiians, with the exception, perhaps, of rice cultivation, which, we think, is all in the hands of Chinese.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The composers of Ka La o Hawaii are the first to give a correct answer to Mr. John B. Rash's last puzzle. An apology is due to our contributor for running his second initial on to his surname on Saturday.

It appears that the article making Lieut. Greely out a murderer, which appeared in the Advertiser and was animadverted upon by a correspondent of this paper, was taken from the San Francisco Chronicle and credit neglected to be given by our local contemporary. Our contemporary, until it disclaimed—as it did this morning—any intention to hurt Greely, was certainly responsible, even if it had given due credit for an article re-published, without comment, from another journal.

A NEW SCHOOL BOOK.

"English Lessons for Hawaiians" is the name of a little school book, written by the Rev. W. B. Oleson, principal of the Hilo boarding school, and printed and published by Mr. T. G. Thurum, Honolulu. It simply consists of a vocabulary of common English words, arranged in columns, with their Hawaiian equivalents in parallel columns. Its author claims for it no "special merit," but puts it forth "to take a place not now filled by any other text-book," with the hope that it may do good, and win the favor of teacher and pupil wherever used. This little book should certainly be a great help to teachers of Hawaiian youth, and of still greater service to Hawaiians beginning the study of English. It can be had at Mr. Thurum's Book Store, for twenty-five cents a copy.

SILVER WEDDING.

A very pleasant gathering took place at Kapalama on Saturday evening, at the residence of Mr. William Auld, the popular clerk of the water department. The occasion was the celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Auld's silver wedding, and among the numerous guests joyfully honoring the occasion were His Majesty the King, attended by Col. Boyd, aide-de-camp, Major Purvis, vice-chamberlain, and Mrs. Swan, Her Majesty's Secretary, the Hon. Noble Kahe and Representative Kaulukou, Lieuts. Macfarlane, Purvis, Dorrien, Sub-lieut. Tarleton, of H.B.M.S. Constance, many well-known citizens and a large representation of ladies. Dancing began about half-past eight and continued until about midnight, to the splendid music of Mr. Berger's string band. An elegant collation was spread beneath a canopy in rear of the dancing pavilion, the centre piece being a magnificent wedding cake ornamented at the base with silver work. At the close of the feast His Majesty proposed the health of the bride and groom, wishing them many happy returns of the day and trusting that they would live to celebrate their golden wedding. Mr. Berger offered the sentiment, "Long live His Majesty," which was responded to by three rousing cheers and a tiger. After some excellent vocal music and social intercourse, the party was gradually brought to a successful termination, everybody well-pleased and happy, and wishing the bride and groom of a quarter of a century Aloha.

THE CREDIT SYSTEM.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—You and your contemporaries are on the right track when you attack our pernicious credit system. I say pernicious, because it is pernicious. Its bad effect is not only felt by creditors, but it has a demoralizing influence on the community. Probably no other cause tends so much to engender habits of extravagance. The fact that people are not required to pay their bills until the end of the quarter induces many to procure things which they do not really need and cannot afford. Then when quarter day comes they are unable to meet their engagements, and the creditor suffers. In fact, I think I am not far wrong in saying that some unprincipled people incur liabilities without the slightest intention of ever paying. To compensate for the losses made by trusting this class of customers, the trader charges a higher price to those who pay than he otherwise would. At least, I infer so much from what a business man said the other day, when I asked him if he could not sell me a certain line of goods at a little lower figure. He replied that he was compelled to sell high to make up for bad debts. Now, I really do not see the justice of charging those who do pay with the debts of those who do not pay. Neither do I see why honest and frugal people in Honolulu, as a rule, should desire three months' credit; for salaries here are invariably paid weekly, fortnightly, or monthly. Then why keep the retailer out of his money a longer period? No doubt, a lessening of credit would be a lessening of trade; but it would also be a lessening of losses, and better do a smaller trade with no losses, than a big trade with big losses. Many years ago I did business with a large clothing and drapery establishment in London. I was told by the manager, at the outset, that their prices meant cash, but if any of their customers wanted accommodation they made an extra charge of one per cent for entering on the books, and that an additional charge of one half of one per cent per month was made until the account was settled. I then considered it a very wise and fair arrangement, and I now think if business people in Honolulu would adopt some similar plan it would prove beneficial to themselves and to their customers.

ANTI-CREDIT.

LATEST FOREIGN NEWS.

The British Parliament is convoked for the 23rd of October.

A dismal state of affairs exists at Naples, Italy, from the cholera. From midnight of Friday, Sept. 12th, till the following Sunday afternoon there were 1229 cases and 687 deaths. At many other places in Italy the mortality is very great. An Italian bark arrived at Quebec, Canada, with a clean bill of health, from Marseilles, France, reports the cholera much worse there than is made public.

There is a terrible and general feeling of bitterness in Paris against England, war being openly discussed.

General Gordon is reported to have taken two islands near Sennar. The sheiks of the Dengli tribe have defeated El Mahdi, the False Prophet. The Canadian contingent of 500 boatmen for the Soudan left Montreal on the 14th inst. It is said friendly tribes will be forced to join the rebels unless they receive speedy assistance.

The Chinese Ministry has replied in firm tones to the ultimatum of France. It holds that China having respected certain articles of the Tientsin provisional treaty France should respect the others. The French demand for indemnity, it claims, is not in accordance with the treaty, is in prejudice of their friendly relations and contrary to international law. China is prepared to withdraw its garrison from Tonquin after the expiration of a month, and the Ministry ask if the Government of France cannot wait till then, when a complete treaty will be arranged. It is deemed lamentable that arrangements for making a proper treaty should be delayed by a demand for indemnity; the forcible taking of guarantee and indemnity is contrary to the treaty and compels China to give the treaty powers the history of the Tonquin question, together with the protest of China, and the latter Government awaits an opportunity to discuss the question. The Tsung Li Yamen requests that Patenotre, the French Ambassador, shall come to Tientsin to arrange a definite treaty, which will manifest mutual sincerity and strengthen the friendly relations between the two nations. This would be the proper mode of procedure according to international law. The Tsung Li Yamen announces it will not be moved by any man's orders. Paris advices are to the effect that orders have been telegraphed to Admiral Courbet to resume operations, and that he, on receipt of the despatch, left Matsun with his whole fleet and started north.
